ANTIIMPERIALISM

The IPA leads a permanent anti-imperialist campaign confronting US-led hyper-imperialism through education, mobilization and solidarity, linking struggles worldwide to expose war, sanctions, occupation and build peoples' power.

The International Peoples' Assembly (IPA) maintains a permanent campaign of denunciation, education, and mobilization against imperialism in all its forms. In our time, imperialism has reached a new and dangerous stage — what we call hyper-imperialism led by the United States and its allies, who act as a single, integrated bloc of military, economic, political, and cultural domination. This system seeks to maintain its global hegemony through wars, sanctions, blockades, military bases, and the control of information and culture, threatening peace, sovereignty, and life itself.

(read the Tricontinental Institute study “Hyper-Imperialism: A Dangerous Decadent New Stage”)

Our anti-imperialist struggle is rooted in the belief that peoples have the right to determine their own destiny and to live free from occupation, coercion, and exploitation. From Palestine to Cuba, from the Sahel to Latin America, from Asia to the heart of Africa, resistance continues to grow. The IPA works to connect these struggles, strengthen their organization, and give them a collective international expression.

ANTIIMPERIALISM

The IPA advances the Anti-Imperialist Struggle as a global process of agitation, education, and mobilization focused on confronting U.S. militarism and imperialist wars. Organizations across all regions maintain an agenda of assemblies, political education programs, cultural actions, and mass mobilizations that expose the destructive role of imperialism and promote solidarity among peoples.

The campaign addresses a wide range of issues: imperialist wars and occupations; the militarization of territories and police forces; economic warfare through sanctions and blockades; the arms trade; environmental destruction; the normalization of violence and genocide; and the psychological and cultural wars that seek to dominate our imaginations. Organizations in each region bring their own experiences and perspectives, building a common front of struggle based on local realities and international solidarity.

Through this permanent campaign, the IPA reaffirms that confronting imperialism is central to the class struggle. We organize, study, and act together to end imperialism and build the power of the peoples.
